

The extraordinary solar flare of June 11, 1991, was the best example observed by EGRET during the last solar maximum. GLAST will localize a bright flare like this to 2 arc minutes, which is much smaller than the 30-arc-minute diameter of the Sun as seen from the Earth.